

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MAY 6.

THE SEVEN YEAR LOCUSTS.—These winged visitors are again expected in the month of June, this year, as their last two appearances are said to have been in 1860 and 1867. They appear at first in the form of a sluggish and unsightly brown beetle, and emerge from the ground through small round holes, the ground in some places being so thickly perforated as to resemble a honey-comb. When they have emerged from these holes they crawl up and attach themselves to weeds or trunks of trees, and thus remain basking in the sun until the perfect locusts are matured. In the course of a few days the locust bursts its crude brown beetle like shell, and flies off, like another perfect and entirely different insect, leaving the husk still adhering to the tree or weed upon which it was fastened, with a clean-cut slit, as though done with a sharp knife, in the body from which the locust made its escape. The liberated locusts at first spend a few days in merrily singing songs of rejoicing over their advent to a new existence, the noise made by them in some localities being almost deafening, although not particularly unpleasant.

LANGUAGE OF THE CLOUDS.—The colours of the sky at particular times afford wonderfully good evidence. Not only does a rosy sunset presage fair weather and a ruddy sunshine, but there are other tints which speak with equal clearness and accuracy. A bright yellowish sky in the evening indicates wind; a pale yellow, wet; a neutral gray color constitutes a favourable sign in the morning. The clouds are full of meaning in themselves. If their forms are soft, undefined and feathery, the weather will be fine. If the edges are hard, sharp and definite, it will be foul. Generally speaking, any deep, unusual lines betoken wind and rain, while the more quiet and delicate tints bespeak fair weather.
